Scenario 1:

A student is looking for a Dojo on LocalDojo.com

- 1. As the homepage is loading, s/he can see instantly search results and auto-detected location in bottom part of the screen, without having to do anything.
- 2. S/he can narrow his/her search by using the quick filter and thus restrict results for just one specific Martial Art or s/he can use advanced search and be more specific about what he's looking for.
- 3. Once s/he see the results, s/he'll click on the name of the Dojo and see its detailed page with full information.
 - This might be the end, as s/he could only need to know the exact location of the Dojo or to get to know the contact. S/he just writes it down or remember it and that's it.
 - Or s/he might contact (ask about something) the Dojo through the contact form on the detailed page and wait for the answer via email.
 - The third options is that s/he know the Dojo and wants to rate the Dojo or write a review for it.

- 3. S/he is still interested in adding his Dojo, so s/he clicks "Add Dojo" button (which is on each page always at the top right corner) and s/he'll have to either sign-in or create a new account first.
